DRINK

School-themed pub crawl

Wicker Park

Luxuriate in nostalgia at the Young Irish Wicker Park Pub Crawl (start: Wicker Park Tavern, 1958 W. North Ave. 773-278-5138) and show up to this back-to-school-themed crawl wearing school colors, letterman jackets, backpacks or whatever represents your school-age self. The $25 cover gets you drink deals at four bars, including Northside Bar & Grill (1635 N. Damen Ave.) and Cans Bar and Canteen (1640 N. Damen Ave.). Why not channel your high school crowd and come dressed as a nerd, a jock, a princess, a basket case or ... wait, this is sounding too familiar.

When: 2 p.m. Saturday. Stop by anywhere along the route.

SUDS UP

Green Dolphin 'car wash'

Lincoln Park

The tag line for this foam party is "come in clean, leave dirty," and if you've ever been to a dance party drenched in foam and fueled by DJs, you know what that means. Thankfully Car Wash, A Foam Party (Green Dolphin Street, 2200 N. Ashland Ave. 773-395-0066) is more than the sudsed-up mess of college yore. Choose from a dozen DJs on tap, including Funk, Na Palm, Psycho Bitch, Teri Bristol, Dino G, Uncle Milt, Just Joey and John Curley, spinning in wet and dry rooms. There's also a free barbecue (2-6 p.m.) and a free clothes check for those who don't want to head home soaked post-foam.

BYO swimsuits, of course. $5-$15.

When: 2 p.m. Sunday

EAT

All-you-can-eat pork

Near South Side

Got tickets to Sunday's Sox game? Get a free ride to the Cell from Reggie's (2109 S. State St. 312-949-0120) and return for a post-game, $10 pig roast. No ticket? No problem. The all-you-can-eat roast is open to everyone. Bring an empty stomach; besides pork, the buffet includes baked beans, corn, dirty rice and cole slaw. Game-goers, the bus leaves about a half-hour before the game. (Psst: Come football season, a free shuttle also will bus people to and from Soldier Field.)

When: 4:30 p.m. Sunday

WATCH

Kitschy horror movies

Nothing says "brave

the weekend heat" like watching large-screen "tales of terror," the theme of the latest installment of horror-movie marathon Terror in the Aisles (Portage Theater, 4050 N. Milwaukee Ave.). Meet John Harrison, director of "Clive Barker's Book of Blood" (screening at 10 p.m.) and "Tales from the Darkside" (midnight); watch horror shorts; and see Clive Barker paintings in the lobby. Like always, there will be vendor tables, prizes for costumes and unexpected twists. $10-$12. Buy tickets at brownpapertickets.com.

When: 7 p.m. Saturday

PICKS
BY LISA BALDE

SEE

Chicago Air & Water Show

No doubt thousands will head lakeside to watch the annual free spectacle of plane and boat tricks. Got your spot picked out? Here are some tips:

» If you want the full effect of Vince Vaughn's parachute jump, brave the crowds and grab a sliver of North Avenue Beach (1600 N. Lake Shore Drive), where the "Couples Retreat" actor will land.

» Call to reserve a cushy seat at Oak Street Beachstro (1001 N. Lake Shore Drive. 312-915-4100), where shade, seating and restrooms are guaranteed from 10 a.m.-4 p.m. Consider opting into the pig roast package ($65 per person), which includes an all-you-can-eat buffet.

» Want sand but fewer people? Consider your beach options from Foster Avenue to 12th Street beaches and beyond.

» For something more low-key (and with beer just steps away), check out Benchmark (1510 N. Wells St. 312-649-9640), the new Old Town bar with a sweet retractable roof and supposed great views of the air show.

When: 11 a.m. Saturday and Sunday

All juried up, and nowhere to go

Who knew trying a former governor was such hard work? After 12 days of deliberations, the jury in Rod Blagojevich's corruption trial still is deadlocked on most of the 24 counts against the former "Celebrity Apprentice" competitor, the Tribune reports. Time for a day off, right? Indeed, the judge gave the jury a day off from the courthouse Friday. What did the jurors do with their free day in Chicago? We have no way of knowing, and we can't even imagine what would work for them.

WATCH THE SOX?

Blago is well-known as a Cubs fan, and the jury wouldn't want the news media to read anything into a potential verdict. So U.S. Cellular Field is out.

GO BAR-HOPPING?

That's all well and good until the social lubricant sinks in and liquored-up tongues start wagging. Best to avoid booze on the day off.

CRASH LOLLA?

Yeah, the music festival was last weekend. But the jury could be forgiven for losing touch with pop culture. The Blago trial started in, what, 1992?

SEE 'THE EXPENDABLES'?

Not a chance. This jury has seen enough flexing and fireworks in the past two months.

Vince takes the plunge

Keep your eyes on the sky Saturday morning. Vince Vaughn, who is filming "The Dilemma" in Chicago, will jump into the Air and Water Show with the U.S. Army Golden Knights parachute team at 11 a.m., the Tribune reports. That is so money!

Haute heads turning to new high-end shopping areas around Rush Street

Chicago Tribune

High-end shopping isn't disappearing from Chicago. It's changing addresses.

While Oak Street flounders with record vacancies in the wake of the global luxury recession, adjacent Rush Street is coming into its own as a shopping strip for the rich and fabulous.

Leading the charge is a striking new Hermes flagship at Oak and Rush streets that is drawing the nucleus of Chicago's high-end fashion energy west to Rush. In June, the Parisian salon best known for its $375 silk scarves and $10,000 Birkin bags moved from Oak's dead zone near the shuttered Esquire Theater, where it resided since 1989, to the intersection of the old and new luxury streets.

Oak Street isn't alone in the upheaval riling exclusive shopping strips around the world, and the shakeup has raised questions about how relevant marquee streets such as Rodeo Drive or Madison Avenue are to a new generation of luxury consumers.

The Ladies Who Lunch who frequented Oak Street salons in the 1990s are stepping aside for their sons and daughters, who are just as happy to buy a pair of $995 Jimmy Choo gladiator sandals from the designer's website or—better yet—find them on sale at burgeoning online shopping clubs such as Gilt Groupe, Ideeli or HauteLook.

"The younger customer is key here," said retail consultant Dawn Mello, who has held posts at the top of the luxury world as president of Bergdorf Goodman and creative director at Gucci. "That's who's open to new ideas and new merchandise."

Unlike past spurts of economic turmoil, the wealthy felt the tremors of the Great Recession. And the aftershocks have left them skeptical about designer prices and more willing to venture off the beaten track in search of well-crafted luxury goods.

The shift in attitude is helping Rush Street appeal to luxury houses that a decade ago saw the road as little more than a back alley to the Magnificent Mile and a thoroughfare to the Near North bar scene.

"More and more retailers are considering Rush as a location for luxury or better fashion," said Lorraine Adney, director of the Midwestern region for the McDevitt Co., a retail real estate firm. "People who before this point in time had not viewed Rush Street as luxury are now taking a second look and saying this could be another option."

WHO'S BUYING LUXE?

Spending on luxury goods by affluent Americans is forecast to grow by $28 billion in 2010, experts forecast last month, and the wealthy are happy despite most believing the U.S. is still in recession. The "Survey of Affluence and Wealth in America," conducted by American Express Publishing and Harrison Group, found luxury spending would rebound for the first time in three years, led by purchases of automobiles, services, travel and children's clothing. REUTERS

The Marc Jacobs Collection, which has a reputation for pioneering into new luxury territory, spurred the Rush Street renaissance earlier this year when it opened a dramatic outpost at Rush and Walton streets in the swanky Elysian Hotel. Chandeliers dangling from the 20-foot ceilings through the large picture windows bring a palatial bearing previously unfamiliar to the street.

French shoe designer Christian Louboutin, known for sky-high pumps with trademark red soles, has been looking at space on Rush Street for its first Chicago store. And British tailored-clothing store Ted Baker is moving onto Rush around the corner from Prada.

The secret about luxury houses is that even though they want to be exclusive, they don't want to stray too far from the pack, real estate brokers say. The more luxury retailers that find a home on Rush Street, the more will follow.

Since opening June 1 at Rush and Oak across from Barneys and Prada, Hermes has seen its Chicago sales increase "dramatically" from a year ago, said Robert Chavez, CEO of Hermes in the U.S.

"What was surprising is the enormous level of increased walk-in traffic," Chavez said. "There are a lot more walk-ins and tourists due to the corner location."

Real estate brokers also say interest along Oak Street is starting to pick up, and there is talk about filling empty storefronts with groups of young designers from Asia and Europe that will bring new life to the strip.

"Everything needs redefining and redesigning," said cosmetics maven Marilyn Miglin, who first set up shop on the street in 1963. "The days when I began on Oak Street, there were a lot of small spaces. We need to make room for new designers again, smaller entrepreneurs that will bring new energy."

The his and hers tour

By Adryanna Dillon

FOR REDEYE

Racing through crowded sidewalks and defending your territory in long checkout lines—downtown shopping in Chicago sometimes can feel like you're on the chaotic set of "Transformers 3."

That is starting to change on Rush Street, where a slew of store openings and relocations is taking the stress out of the shopping experience—and injecting a supersized dose of glamour. Think less "Transformers," more "Pretty Woman."

Is spending your paycheck on luxury goods practical? Not for most of us. But the shopping experience on Rush is supreme. I love that Barneys feels more like a museum than a department store, and the less-crowded streets and wide sidewalks are perfect for leisurely weekend shopping trips (by leisurely, I mean a bit more window shopping, a bit less maxing out your credit card all in one swipe).

It's not all high-end handbags and pricey high heels on Rush and its side streets. I visited several stores in the neighborhood and picked items for men and women that caught my eye—and most of them won't break the bank.

» Read "5 cute style ideas from Lolla" from Adryanna Dillon at redeyechicago.com/fashion.

The store sign doesn't say Gap, but the brand's distinct window advertising gives the secret away. 1969 is one of Gap's three concept stores nationwide that sells its redesigned premium denim collection and other trendy items in a boutique-like setting. Skinny jeans for all—the slim cut should naturally frame your silhouette for a slender look.

Intermix 40 E. Delaware Pl., 312-640-2922
Intermix stocks the best designer pieces from the high and low ends. You can find your fave basics and something absolutely fabulous all in the same place. E! News host and part-time Chicago resident Giuliana Rancic once told me this is one of her favorite places to shop in the city. Intermix, as well as the nearby Saks Fifth Avenue (700 N. Michigan Ave.), carry Mary-Kate and Ashley Olsen's line Elizabeth and James, which is one of the most talked-about new fashion collections.

NEWSDAY

Sometimes, first impressions aren't exactly right.

Although Mike Posner's smash single "Cooler Than Me" suggests he might be 3OH!3's brainier little brother or Ke$ha's self-deprecating male counterpart, the recent Duke University graduate's debut album, "31 Minutes to Take Off," actually has far more in common with Justin Timberlake and Usher.

Posner plays the new-millennium soulman in "Do You Wanna," riffing off a Ray LaMontagne horn sample and selling the loping groove like he's the love child of Otis Redding and Macy Gray. He holds his own with Boyz II Men, who back him up on "Deja Vu" and give him a sweet response to his sometimes expletive-laden calls. On

ALBUM
31 Minutes to Take Off

Mike Posner

"Synthesizer," Posner stretches a bit too far for a hook to get "Don't synthesize her, don't redesign her" into the synthy-soul ballad.

But before people start getting the idea that he's an old-school soul cat, Posner quickly makes sure to act his age—in the catchy come-on "Bow Chicka Wow Wow" or the retaliatory "Cheated," where he delivers "I shoulda cheated on you, nobody told me I was dating a whore" like an angry Ne-Yo and then proceeds to name the girl in question.

It's those unusual juxtapositions on "31 Minutes to Take Off" that push Posner to the front of the soul-pop line ahead of recent chart-toppers Jay Sean, Iyaz and Bruno Mars. If he keeps the rest of his career this fresh, Posner's takeoff should be exceedingly smooth.

National Lampoon's Vacation

Available now

This is the film that first introduced us to the Griswold family and their adventures. Chevy Chase plays Clark Griswold, who has planned a top-flight vacation for the family. It's something he has been looking forward to for months, leaving Chicago and heading to the Wally World theme park. Everything that can go wrong does, which makes for a hilarious cross-country journey.

Numb3rs: The Final Season

Available now

Davis Krumholtz changes the nerd image of a math wizard with his portrayal of Charlie Eppes on the canceled CBS series. Not only does his character have fashion sense, he has a hot girlfriend and she's as smart as—or smarter than—anyone on the show. The show is a clever blend of police drama with mathematics. Krumholtz made the math work while Rob Morrow was equally as convincing as his FBI brother. The sum of their work makes "Numb3rs" a real viewing positive.

ALBUM

The Laziest Gal in Town

Jane Krakowski

Though known for slutty, ditzy roles on "Ally McBeal" and "30 Rock," Jane Krakowski has long had a career as a richly voiced singer of theatrical song. Her Broadway resume is way boldfaced—musicals such as "Grand Hotel" and the 2003 revival of "Nine," for which she won a Tony. Krakowski brings those skills to her solo debut, doing cabaret, jazz and standard song proud in the process. Recorded live, Krakowski (right) has flirty fun with every tune.

SONG

The Catalyst

Linkin Park

The evolution of Linkin Park takes another left turn with the one-time rap-rock kings' new single "The Catalyst." Starting with an odd, driving chant from Chester Bennington that flows into a synth-pop melody floating over an industrial backbeat, "The Catalyst" is unlike anything else on the radio and a departure from the band's trademark sound. But Bennington's distinctive vocals and the sense of drama are more than enough of a link to the band's multiplatinum past to bring attention to this wild pop experiment.

Date Night

Available now

Steve Carell and Tina Fey are an average suburban couple whose "date night" on the town in New York City goes horribly awry. It's a perfect storm of bad moviemaking: weak actors, vacuous script and unskilled direction. Viewers have to give some ground with logic when it comes to light comedies. But having a couple make such an endless string of inane decisions is sloppy and lazy writing. It's so awful, even the bloopers at the end aren't funny.

‘Scott Pilgrim’ lost in a metaphor

Somehow, puny bass player Scott Pilgrim (Michael Cera) has a certain way with the ladies, including his latest crush Ramona (Mary Elizabeth Winstead). The hard part: Scott must defeat Ramona’s seven evil exes in a video game-style battle if he wants to stay with her. Anna Kendrick, Chris Evans, Brandon Routh, Kieran Culkin and Jason Schwartzman co-star.

The buzz: Directed by Edgar Wright (“Hot Fuzz”) and featuring a smorgasbord of cool young actors, “Scott Pilgrim,” based on Bryan Lee O’Malley’s graphic novels, is hipster central and won’t be for everyone. Maybe this time Cera’s attempt to be a badass will work better than “Youth in Revolt.”

The verdict: The movie’s all so metaphorical that it nearly ceases to exist in reality. (In reality, the exes would beat the snot out of Scott.) Instead of developing anything about its characters or their relationships after a snappy start, the repetitive “Scott Pilgrim” constantly asserts its own coolness in increasingly ironic ways until it’s barely clear what’s being winked at anymore. Still, being funny and dorky-chic is the goal here and that’s exactly what “Scott Pilgrim” is, even if its genre mash-up never approaches the insight about the dangerously heightened emotions of youth seen in movies such as “Brick.”

Worth watching?

MATT’S PICKS FOR WHAT’S ALSO IN THEATERS

Life During Wartime (NR) Messed up and fascinating.

The Other Guys (PG-13) Welcome back, Will Ferrell.

The Expendables (R) Meaty.

Eat Pray Love (PG-13) Pretty scenery, delicious-looking food.

Middle Men (R) Even stories about Internet porn can be boring.

New York minute

By Lisa Balde

Don't be intimidated by weekend crowds at the new Gold Coast iteration of this popular local breakfast concept with locations in the South Loop and River North. And trust us, there will be a crowd. On opening weekend, Yolk's courtyard already was lined with eager diners. But staffers powered through the huge list of names, paring down an estimated 35-minute wait to about 15.

Inside, the place is unmistakably Yolk, with yolky yellow walls, bamboo floors and stacks of egg cartons at the edge of the kitchen. Will this location give reason to stay as packed as the other Yolks?

Server says: Try the eggs Benedict ($9.99, right), which Yolk's known for. It even gets a "voted best in town" shout-out on the menu, though we still can't figure out where the vote came from.

We say: The original Benedict is fine, no better or worse than we've had before, but the Benedict spin-offs are must-tries. We'll be back for the South of the Border Benny ($9.99), made with not-too-spicy (but certainly not bland) chorizo and chipotle sauce. If you can make room, order Yolk's fluffy pancakes too.

Feel free to pass on: Any non-breakfast item. No offense to lunch, but this place knows the most important meal of the day, from omelets and frittatas to crepes and French toast. Ordering a BLT here just wouldn't feel right.

Sideshow: The usual sausage, bacon and potatoes share menu space with yogurt, corned beef hash and pastries. But you probably won't need a side if your meal comes with fruit; this is one seriously hefty order of fresh pineapple, grapes and orange slices.

Is it lunchtime yet? Salads, wraps, burgers and sandwiches play a significant but secondary role. We're tempted by the 10 varieties of big salads such as sesame-crusted salmon with peppers and sesame dressing, and steak salad with sliced blackened beef and crumbled blue cheese.

Buzz factor: Yolk gets its java from Illinois-based Kokos Coffee and serves it at every location. Unlimited cups are $2.34; expect yours to be filled often.

Crowd surfing: On weekends, Gold Coast couples mix with obvious tourists, and young professionals grabbing a bite after their morning run. Weekdays cater to downtown workerbees.

Pack your meal, but pass on BPA

At home with my parents on a recent weekend, I noticed my mom packs my dad's sandwiches in plastic resealable bags. Not exactly what a green gal like me wants to see, especially from her own parents.

Soon after, I dragged my mom to Target in search of reusable containers. Her choice very quickly became the ones that boasted being BPA-free.

"Go, Mom," I thought—until I figured out that she knew BPA was bad but had no idea why. Of course, she's not the only one.

So here's a crash course on BPA, including what it means and whether you should avoid it.

BPA stands for bisphenol A, a chemical that long has been used in the production of plastic food containers, baby bottles and even metal food cans.

It's not banned as of yet, but the Food and Drug Administration sees reason for concern based on some recent studies. According to a January report by the FDA, the chemical's possible effects on the brain and behavior have the group looking at BPA more carefully. The potential effects are particularly important when it comes to babies and small children, as their development is not yet complete.

In fact, because of the sensitivity of infants, the FDA website's update on BPA says the organization supports and encourages the removal of BPA from baby bottles and feeding cups during this "interim phase."

But don't panic just yet—research by the FDA has shown that low-level exposure to BPA is not an immediate threat.

Still want to minimize your BPA exposure? Buy fewer canned products, such as soups and pasta. The can's lining can leach BPA into the food.

Polycarbonate plastic containers, usually marked with recycling No. 7, can leak BPA, especially if heated. Instead, try buying glass or ceramic dishware if you're going to be heating them often.

In the end, you don't have to be an expert on the subject to say no to BPA, but it helps to know why you're just saying no, doesn't it?

First fight

A pair of All-Star first basemen square off this weekend

By Ryan Smith FOR REDEYE

Everyone's calling this baseball season "The Year of the Pitcher," but don't tell that to White Sox star Paul Konerko and Detroit Tigers slugger Miguel Cabrera. This pair of All-Star first basemen is punishing major league pitchers with regularity this season. Which star will shine more brightly this weekend when the Tigers visit the White Sox?

Time for a RedEye faceoff to find out. RYAN SMITH IS A REDEYE SPECIAL CONTRIBUTOR.

Cabrera: Miggy. Because his first name is Miguel. Get it?

NICKNAME
WINNER

Both nicknames are pretty unimaginative, but we give Konerko the edge here because Sox fans are so skilled at yelling "PAUUUUUULIE!" at the top of their lungs at the Cell.

Konerko: Paulie. Because his first name is Paul. Get it?

STATS
WINNER

As studly as Konerko has been this year, Miggy has mustered some ridiculous, video game-like numbers.

Through Thursday, Konerko was sporting a handsome .302 batting average, 28 home runs and 78 RBIs. He's on pace to set career-best numbers in several categories.

DEFENSE

This is an ugly category for both. Let's just move on.

Konerko doesn't have the range and reaction time of the best first basemen, but Cabrera makes Konerko look like Derrek Lee.

Defense is his Achilles' heel. Cabrera started his career as a left fielder, but his sloppy fielding and lack of conditioning led to a change to third base and eventually to first base.

OVERALL WINNER: Cabrera may have the stats to make fantasy baseball owners drool, but for our money, we'll take Paulie in the battle for first. SOURCES: MLB.COM, ESPN.COM

Enter a number between 1 and 9 in the empty squares. The clues are the numbers in the white circles that give the sum of the solution numbers: above the line are across clues; below the line are down clues. Thus, a clue of 3 will produce a solution of 2 and 1, and a 5 will produce 4 and 1, or 2 and 3, but, of course, which squares they go in will depend on the solution of a clue in the other direction. No digit can be repeated in a solution. Answer at redeye.chicago.com/puzzles. EDITED BY MICHAEL MEPHAM

THE ODD COUPLE

Kim Kardashian revealed this week on her blog that her scandalous photos with Justin Bieber on the beach actually are for a "Graduate"-themed photo spread in Elle magazine. Still, Kim, isn't the Biebs a little illegal for you? This got me wondering about what other film couples the two might be able to re-create. Assuming they can, y'know, act. DANA MORAN, REDEYE

Bieber
GETTY IMAGES FILE

My Girl

There's not too much difference in weirdness between the last names Kardashian and Sultenfuss, so Kim has a fighting chance at being a charming, much-older version of Vada. Biebs easily could play nice, nerdy sidekick Thomas Sennett, but millions of teen girls will be scarred by the thought of him dying from a bee sting incident. Oh, the horror!

Gone With the Wind

I can't see her wearing curtains, but otherwise Kardashian has the Scarlett O'Hara thing down pat. And she's already got her own private Tara in the meganormous Kardashian mansion. Give Bieber a few years and he'll be able to sport a Rhett 'stache and a cavalier attitude. But will his mother really approve of him saying "damn"?

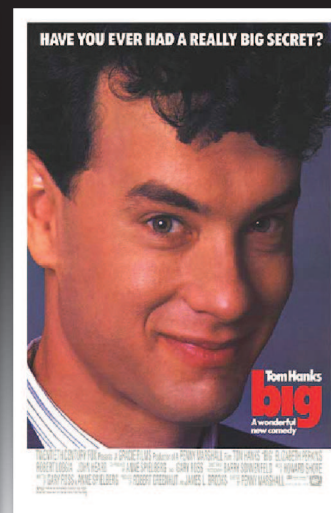

Grease

I'm seeing Danny hair. I'm seeing leather jackets. I'm seeing T-Birds. I'm seeing Bieber. But Kardashian as Sandy? Please. That girl has Rizzo written all over her, and it's a way more fun part anyway. Sign up Amanda Seyfried for the breathy blonde part, call Shia LaBeouf for Kenickie and we've got ourselves a little revival going on here. But can we please cut out "Hopelessly Devoted to You"?

Lars and the Real Girl

Kardashian said on her blog that she's never had any work done, but her natural attributes make her a perfect stand-in for Lars Lindstrom's blow-up gal. Plus, it wouldn't require her to brush up her acting chops! Bieber's sweet innocence certainly would translate as the hapless Lars.

Big

I'm not sure Bieber would wish away his youth on a Zoltar machine, given what might happen to his career once his voice changes. But he'd definitely fit right in as a young Josh Baskin, with Kardashian as his older lady love. As far as casting an older Bieber goes ... well, no 30-year-old man has that haircut unless he's in an emo band, so I'll get back to you.

Lindsay Lohan (right) is headed back to New York after she's out of rehab, her mom said Friday on NBC's "Today." "When she went out to Los Angeles when she was 19," Dina Lohan said, "I had to let her go and let her live and fall and fail and survive. ... You can't make your child not go out and go to a club and not get behind the wheel of a car."

Team Bieber assembles

The dust hasn't even settled yet on "Step Up 3D," but director Jon Chu already is on to his next project. "It's Official...I HAVE BIEBER FEVER," Chu tweeted, according to billboard.com. Chu, who also directed "Step Up," will take the reins of the Justin Bieber 3-D biopic, scheduled for release Feb. 11.

Something to howl about

Joe Manganiello (left), who plays the hot werewolf Alcide on "True Blood," almost can guarantee he'll be showing more skin on the spicy HBO show. "I'm sure there will be more [nudity] in the future," he told People. "I would bet money on that."

THE DIGIT

$2.8 million

That's the listed price of a two-bedroom, three-bathroom house in the L.A. area recently purchased by Scarlett Johansson and Ryan Reynolds, according to usmagazine.com.

Reality can be stranger than the movies—even for the man who plays Pee-wee Herman.

Paul Reubens recalled a coast-to-coast flight a couple of years ago during which he saw his face on the in-flight programming, only to realize it was his "E! True Hollywood Story," he told Playboy magazine in the September issue.

As his mug shot from a decades-old arrest flashed across the screen, Reubens said he wanted to "jump off the plane."

"It's a small club of people who have been the subject of an 'E! True Hollywood Story,'" he said, "never mind being unlucky enough to be trapped in midair while it was airing."

PEE-WEE'S BAD TRIP

"For those who've not yet found their Bill O'Reilly, I'm just glad science has provided a few other options."

—Jennifer Aniston (right), replying in People to the Fox News personality calling her comments about single motherhood "destructive to society." Aniston said "of course" the ideal would be a two-parent household but noted not everyone has a Prince Charming.
